

JOANNE STILL – SECRETARY

Joanne Still is a medical writer, producing continuing medical education (CME) programs for physicians and other health care providers in print and digital formats. She is also a musician and has used her training and experience in therapeutic settings, including music enrichment programs for developmentally disabled children and teens in special education classrooms. In addition, she volunteers with Rehabilitation Through the Arts (RTA) as a music program facilitator at Woodbourne Correctional Facility. RTA programs teach life skills through arts disciplines to incarcerated people.

Joanne earned B.A. degrees in sociology and literature in English from the University of the State of New York (now Excelsior College). She lives in Ulster County, New York. Joanne has served as a board member of Network SSI since 2015.
